THE FACTORY FOREMAN.

It was just such an American village as you see in pictures. A background of superb bold mountain, all clothed in blue green cedars, with a torrent thundering down a deep gorge and falling in billows of foam; a river reflecting the azure of the sky, and a knot of houses, with a church spire at one end and a thicket of factory chimneys at the other, whose black smoke wrote ever-changing hieroglyphics against the brilliancy of the sky. This was Dapplevale. And in the rosy sunset of this blossoming June day the girls were all pouring out of the broad doorway, while Gerald Blake, the foreman, sat behind his desk, a pen behind his ear and his small, beady black eyes drawn back, as it were, in the shelter of a precipice of shaggy eyebrow.

One by one the girls stopped and received their pay for one week's work, for this was Saturday night. One by one they filed out, with a sad, discontented frown until the last one passed in front of the high-railed desk.

She was slight and tall, with large, velvety blue eyes, a complexion as delicately grained and transparent as rose-colored velvet, and with a smile, sweet in the way the blue ribbon at her throat was tied and the manner in which the simple details of her dress were arranged, that bespoke her of foreign birth.

"Well, Miss Annette," said Mr. Blake, "it is not disagreeable," she answered, as she extended her hand for the money the foreman was counting out.

"You have given me but $4," she said.
"It was to be $8 by the contract."

Mr. Blake shrugged his shoulders disagreeably.

"Humph!" he grunted; "you ain't much accustomed to our way of doing things, are you, mademoiselle? Eight —of course; but we deduct two for a fee."

"A fee! For what?" Annette demanded, with flushed cheeks and sparkling eyes.

"For getting you the situation, mademoiselle, to be sure," said Mr. Blake in a superior sort of way. "Such places are not to be had for nothing, and I naturally expect to pay something for the privilege."

"Did not!" flashed out Annette Duvelle.

"Oh—well—all right. Because you know you ain't obliged to stay unless you choose."

"Do you mean," hesitated Annette,
"that if I do not pay you this money?"

"You can't expect to stay in the works," said Mr. Blake, hitching up his collar.

"But the other two dollars?"

"Oh," said Mr. Blake, "that's a percentage the girls all pay."

"But what is it for?"

Mr. Blake laughed.

"Well, it helps out my salary. Of course, you know, the girls all expect to pay something every week for keeping their situations in a place where there's so many anxious to get in."

"Oh, Mr. Elderslie," repeated Blake, "he hasn't a right to do with it. I am master at the Dapplevale Works."

"Mr. Elderslie owns it, I believe?"

"Well, yes, he owns it. But I manage everything. Mr. Elderslie reposes the utmost confidence in my capacity, ability, and—responsibility. And now if you've any more questions to ask?"

"I have none," said Annette, wistfully. "But I need this money myself.
I cannot afford, anymore than the other girls, to leave this place without a cent." And Mr. Blake slammed down the cover of his desk as if it were a patent guillotine and poor Annette Duvelle's neck were under it.

Two or three of the factory girls who had hovered around the open door to hear the discussion looked with awe-stricken faces at Annette as she came out with $4 which she had received from the cashier in her hand.

"You are lost your place, and Annette!" whispered Jenny Purton, a pale, dark-eyed little thing who supported a crippled mother and two little sisters out of her meagre earnings.

"It matters not," said Annette. "He is a rogue, and he roges sometimes out-general themselves."

about the way things are managed here.
It became so notorious that the rumors reached her even at Blythesdale Springs, and she chose to come and see for herself. Annette, my darling, the best welding gift we can make to these poor working girls is a new foreman. Blake, you may consider yourself dismissed."

"But, sir!"

"Not another word," cried Mr. Eldersle, with lowering brow, and an uncon-formable consciousness of Annette's scornful blue eyes following him.

And a new reign began for poor Jenny Purton and the working girls, as well as for Simon Pettengill.

ABOUT WIDOWS.
There are several kinds of widows.
Some, as mentioned by St. Paul, are widows indeed, while others are not.

There isn't much difference between a good widow and a good housekeeper after all.
Either is sure to jump at the first chance.

Customer: "These seem to be very fine diamonds. Are they of pure water?" Jeweler: "Yes, and they are, as sparkling as the tears of a young widow." Customer: "I don't want them. The water would not last very long."

According to the Lowell Citizen the most common form of grass widow in that neighborhood in summer is the woman sent out to pasture in the country, while the husband remains at home in the city.

A father conoling his daughter, who had lost her husband, said: "I don't wonder you grieve for him, my child; you will never find his equal." "I don't know as I can," responded the sobbing widow; "but I'll do my best." The father felt comforted.

A fair widow, who had buried three husbands, went with a gentleman who had just died, and he paid her marked attention, to inspect the graves of the dear departed. After contemplating them in mourning silence, she said:
"You might have been in that row if you had only had a little more courage."

A California widow who put her all into a deal in stock and was shrunken out, called upon her broker and said: "When will this thing probably come out in the papers?" "To-morrow, doubtless." "How long can you suppress it?" "Why, I might keep it out two days, but I can't keep it out two days. That's pretty short notice, but I am a hustler when I get my bonnet on. I'll depend on two days." On the third day the papers chronicled her loss and her wedding on the same page.

Delicate persons, and all whose systems have become debilitated, should bear in mind that Simmons Liver Regulator is not a drastic, purging medicine, does not weaken or deplete the system, and does not act as a cathartic.

It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but it is not intoxicating beverage to lead to intemperance; will promote digestion, dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system.

Heck Lick, W. Stevens, of Georgia, says: "Simmons Liver Regulator is mild and suits me better than more active remedies."

The church bells are sometimes found in the choir.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands of despairing patients can testify. On this point a trustworthy medical writer says:
"Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many if not most of the remedies in general use by physicians afford but temporary benefit.
A cure certainly cannot be expected from such powders, douches, and washes." Ely's Cream Balm is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power with perfect safety and pleasantness to the patient.

The old notion that blood will tell is a vain conceit.

Is Consumption incurable?
Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with abscess of lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an incurable consumptive. Begun taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and now my lungs are healthy, and I am able to do my work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jesse Middlewater, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of lung trouble. Was given up by doctors. Am now in good health." Try it.

Benton's Hair Grower.
All who are bald, all who are becoming bald, all who do not want to be bald, all who are troubled with itching scalp, or itching of the scalp should use Benton's Hair Grower. Eighty per cent of those using it have grown hair. It never fails to stop the hair from falling. Through sickness and fevers the hair sometimes falls off in a short time, and although the person may have remained bald for years, if you use Benton's Hair Grower according to directions you are sure of a growth of hair. In hundreds of cases we have produced a good growth of hair on those who have been bald and glazed for years. We have fully substantiated the following facts:

We grow hair in 60 cases out of 100; no matter how long and bald.

Unlike other remedies, it contains no sugar of lead, or vegetable or mineral poisons.
It is a specific for falling hair, dandruff and itching of the scalp.

The Hair Grower is a hair food, and its composition is made like the oil which composes the hair with its vitality.

Sold by druggists or sent on receipt of price, $1.00.

Advice to Mothers.
Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable.
It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon its merits, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces the inflammation and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. WINSLOW'S Soothing Syrup for Children's Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

A dog will answer to any name when

Who is Your Best Friend?
Your stomach of course. Why? Because if it is out of order you are one of the most miserable creatures living. Give it a fair, honorable chance and see if it is not the best friend you have in the end. Don't smoke in the morning.
Don't drink in the morning. If you must smoke and drink until your stomach is through with breakfast. You can drink and smoke more in the evening and it will tell on you less. If your food ferments and does not digest right—if you are troubled with Heartburn, Dizziness of the head, coming up of the food after eating, flatulency, Indigestion, or any trouble of the stomach, you had best use Green's August Flower, as no person can use it without immediate relief.
